Have You Made a Will?

Do you realize that if you do not dispose of your property by will your estate may be disposed of by law very differently from the way you would wish? The law respecting estates for which no will has been made, can of course take no account of the special personal needs of each beneficiary.

Perhaps one of your heirs may not be well qualified to care for his property, and it should be placed in trust for him; or, perhaps circumstances may make it advisable that one heir should receive a larger share than the others; or, that the property should be given to him in a different form from that given to others. But, unless a will is made, each heir must share the property in accordance with the rigid requirements of the law.

When you make your will, why not assure efficient and economical management of your estate by appointing The Norway National Bank of Norway, Maine, as executor and trustee? The Bank has all the essential qualifications of a competent trustee, including assured existence throughout generations of beneficiaries. It has many qualifications which no individual trustee can possess. Moreover, the cost of its service is no greater than that of an individual trustee.

STOP THE FIRST COLD

A cold does not get well of itself. The process of wearing a cold wears you out and your cough becomes serious if neglected. Hacking coughs drain the energy and sap the vitality. SOUTH PARIS

Gored by Angry Deer
John P. Stearns, superintendent of the Lake Auburn Fish Hatchery, received painful but not serious injuries from the horns and hoofs of an angry deer.

The deer—a big buck—was supposed to be a pet. It was kept in a pen near the hatchery, and it didn't disdain the choice morsels which people in the vicinity were constantly offering. But a wicked glint in the small eyes spelled danger for those who were too companionable.

Mr. Stanley, who was accustomed to feed the deer, entered the pen Sunday morning at 7 o'clock. The animal turned on him. There was a bellow of rage that sounded almost human, a wicked jab of sharp horns—and Mr. Stanley emerged from the pen, blood flowing from several wounds. He was at once given medical attention and no serious results are feared.

Stearns-Lowell

Austin Partridge Stearns, jr., of Paris and Ida Mabel Lowell of South Paris, were united in marriage at 8 o'clock, Wednesday evening, by Rev. C. G. Miller, at Mr. Miller's home. The double ring service was used.

The bride was gowned in white crepe de chene with shadow lace trimming, and wore a handsome hat of white silk and black velvet trimmed with white marionette.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry I. Lowell who moved from Solon's Mills to South Paris about five years ago. She graduated from Paris high school in the class of 1915, and is a member of Mt. Pleasant Rebekah Lodge.

Mr. Stearns is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Austin P. Stearns of Paris Hill. He graduated from Paris high school in the class of 1913. He is a member of Mt. Meia Lodge, I. O. O. F., Mt. Pleasant Rebekah Lodge and is lecturer in Paris Grange.

Gifts of silver, cut glass and linen were received. Mr. and Mrs. Stearns will reside in their own home, recently purchased and remodelled, about two miles from Paris Hill.

Has Received Her Certificate

Hazel Gerry, daughter of Mrs. Mary P. Gerry of Eugene, Ore., has been given a certificate from the Women's National Service school that was held at Vancouver, Washington, in September. It is signed by President Woodrow Wilson, by William H. Taft, chairman of the central committee and by Jane A. Delano, chairman of the National committee on nursing service. She received 94 per cent. in her examination, which was based upon a knowledge of elementary hygiene and home care of the sick. Miss Gerry was the youngest student enrolled this year at Vancouver and was the only one rolled in the school, who had had previous experience at military marching, which combined with commercial and elementary hygiene training. Her father, the late Alva Gerry, was for many years a druggist at South Paris. When she was three months old she was cared for by her aunt, Mrs. Annie Swift at Paris, with whom she lived through her childhood.

How a Man Who Landed On Wood Pile And Was Sore From Head to Foot Found Quick Relief.

Once upon a time Edwin Putnam, who lives in the quiet, pretty hamlet of Wendell Depot, Mass., climbed up into a loft to get some building material, just as many another man living in the country must often do. Suddenly he slipped and fell. Ten feet below was a pile of wood, knotted and gnarled. It was a nasty tumble, and Mr. Putnam was injured painfully in the back, he was covered with bruises, and was sore from head to foot.

The next day he bought a bottle of Sloan's Liniment which had been recommended to him. Within a very few hours the soreness had vanished and the lameness had disappeared. He was an active man once more.

BIG BARN DOOR SKETCHES

Purely Personal and Mostly About Myself and Early Career.

In the language of the late Simon Drake, just as we go to press, this week, the continued story announced to appear in this department, has been crowded out by more important matters. It will appear later.—Editor.

Don Seitz sends me "The Jersey Skeeter." He surely did it. Color of ink and hand writing belongs to the Business Manager of the N. Y. World. He can't deny it.

Am pleased to be remembered even with such wicked stuff as Lena Gensler writes and pins on him. It shows I'm not forgotten.

Mr. Seitz keeps alive his acquaintance with the Mrs. by sending Christmas confectiories and complimentary copies of the books he throws together, such as "Surface Japan," "Pirate Songs," "Discoveries in Europe," "Elba and Elsewhere." The Mrs. is very choice of them and when not loaned to neighbors, they occupy a conspicuous place in the house. I'm allowed to look them over and wonder how he gets time to do such things.

"The Skeeter" however, was sent to me and is not to be loaned or stolen. It shows Don in the position of star performer, at the right hand of the Toast Masters, with 24 others facing empty plates. Neither knives, forks or glasses are seen. It's a barren feast!

The kind the late General Beal calls "Terrible Affair." I know it and shudder! No, I'll not lend this paper. It speaks of cocktails, molasses and—well, hen-raising. It would be misunderstood as was the recital of Mr. Seitz's buccanier poems in the Opera House a few years ago, when one of the admiring listeners shouted:

"It's a lie; an infernal lie, Don Seitz never wrote that stuff!"

That is why I'm not to let his friends here see the paper. No, not even Hugh Fendexter or Talbot Mundy can see it, and they too are liberal minded ink-spillers! It would cast a shadow over the literary glory and social standing now enjoyed by Seitz in this community.

Let's see, Don Seitz left Norway some years ago to make room for me. Two men in the same business, in a small town rarely get on well together. He knew it so jockeyed his possessions in the highest market. I got the local list of the True Religion, an oil can and a contract in which both he and his father, Rev. J. A. Seitz, agreed not to molest me for ten years.

The time specified has run out and he now can send "The Jersey Skeeter" and his essay on James Abbott McNeill Whistler with impunity. There remains no redress or come back under that contract.

I gaze with awe on the Skeeter picture and wonder what would have become of me, and mine had this big-necked, strong-jawed, pompadoored, literary mule-teamer stayed and contested the location with me in those early days. He didn't, thank Heaven!

The game afield was too small for him and he struck out for himself to the universe to conquer and a living to get.

North Conway, N. H. was the scene of operation and the White Mountain News, the implement. A few months sufficed and the bones of that venture along with the old Adams' Power Printing Press, went "bleaching in the classic shades of eternal snows" as far as Seitz was concerned.

He struck the dusty trail for Holyoke, Springfield and Boston. He worked in those towns and wrote letters about them that were printed in the Advertiser and read with interest.

He didn't write the Columbus (Ohio) letter which convulsed the citizens and came near dumping our modest office in the mill pond. He had nothing to do with it. He was at a distance and I near at hand so I let Seitz father that truthful work of art as a measure of self-protection.

This is the first public announcement setting him right in the community. It's been long delayed and I now beg his forgiveness. He didn't do it, I did it.

One morning Seitz, with his clothes on, rolled out of a boat bunk and landed on a North River pier. He was alone in the city of New York. Without friends or work and with little money—$2.10, I think, but he was filled with courage and curiosity.

Somewhere over in Brooklyn lived the son of a minister, who at one time was pastor of the Universalist Church in Norway, the same as his father (Rev. J. A. Seitz) had been, and if he got into real distress he might induce him to listen to his s. o. s. signals. It was a cheering thought. This man was Herbert Gunnerson, treasurer of the Brooklyn Daily Eagle establishment and he was only natural for Seitz to call there in his quest for work, but he did not make himself known.

He applied for employment and was promptly told they had all the help needed. Somehow, somebody peeked through the gilded loop-hole grating and asked what he could do. He said he was an all round printer and wanted work—he didn't say this meekly as that was not his way—but told it as though he was master of the situation.

"It was possible" said the obliging man, "that Jerry might have something in the job department down stairs. The speaking tube answered back that Jerry's words were well supplied. Seitz asked and got permission to go down stairs and look the job printing office over. It was granted. He descended the stairs and wound around in the dingy labyrinth of dirt, ink and machinery in the basement where job printing was done.

He won't deny it. He can't, and he truthful, and that is why his paper announced the landslide for Hughes the Wednesday morning after the election. Strict obedience to the truth and correct it afterwards, if necessary. That's the newspaper slogan! And that is my excuse for writing this story. It might not have come just at this time and side-tracked a continued article which was scheduled to appear this week if Seitz had not pursued me with that blazing, buzzing, lying Jersey Skeeter, which shows him at a recent Newark Ad Club Banquet and put words in his mouth he never said.

The truth impels me to set him right and do it promptly and I make bold in saying when Jerry took Seitz into the job department of the Brooklyn Daily Eagle establishment, all he had was youth, energy, self-assurance, good looks and a clean pocket handkerchief.

I don't care what Lena Gensler says of the acquired rights to "the one and only" paper stretcher in existence. Don kept his fingers out of the Gordon press and run the sheets through even more than foot power. He could "kick a press," make up and reduce ink as well as cast glue and molasses rollers. Sim Drake had taught him this and many other useful things in the Advertiser office.

He soon sent his name to the City Editor asked for special assignments at reporting. Occasionally an evening job of this kind fell to him and he handed in the copy in the morning when he went to his day's work in the basement.

Sim Drake, printer, Norway, Me., gave him his first lessons in reporting and he caught on it amazingly and dressed his local items up in fantastic garments that pleased reader as well as the city editor, and special minor assignments came often and with them came good money which helped him pay his debts.

One day late in the afternoon when the ink was working badly and the form was off its feet, word was magaphoned to Jerry asking if he wouldn't send Seitz up stairs to the City Editor's desk.

Jerry delivered it with evident pleasure and said:

"You go right up and see what they want."

Don washed the ink off his hands, combed his pompadour with his fingers and shined his boots with the towel and was about to leave when Jerry said:

"If they have any good job to hand out to you here you take it; if not, you come back here and get the devil out of that press and the job off."

"But, can you get on without me here?" inquired Seitz.

Here, is the key note of Don's success regardless of what the Skeeter may have to say: His positive assurance that he was absolutely needed wherever he was placed. That's the whole of it.

"Sure, we can come to time on these labels" was Jerry's reply.

Don didn't tumble to it at the time, but he did later that Jerry kept him there out of the kindness of his heart, rather than with regard to the profit of the establishment.

The city editor said: "Beecher is going to die and the man we've assigned to cover it has fell down and can you do it?"

There was no evasive, doubting, half-hearted "I will try" that's not Seitz's way, he simply said, "Yes, sir."

"Then get busy, space unlimited, get the whole of it."

Nothing was easier for Seitz to do than this. He was familiar with the history of the great preacher and Plymouth Church and the Tilton-Beecher scandal,—boy as he was, this assignment fitted him the best of any that could have been made.

It was an all night's job and the good person saw fit to the just at the proper time and nothing to do with that carried him onto the list of regular reporters.

That's how it was done. He never returned to the basement to finish up that label job, though he often met Jerry and had pleasant chats with him.

Years after Jerry became a wreck and outcast, Seitz was one of the World and kept him there and made up pay-roll deficiencies out of his personal funds. Jerry was pointed out to me when being shown through this great plant by Mr. Seitz, who said:

"There's the man that gave me my first job over in Brooklyn, and he'll have work here, drunk or sober, so long as he lives and I have any control in affairs here."

yet I wish to thank them for calling my attention to it. Truth first and at all times even if you have to correct it in the next edition. That's a winner. Please let this go along with it thundering down the ages: It was self-assurance, determination, ability and willingness to work, coupled with horse-sense and Sim Drake's country printing office training in the Norway (Me.) Advertiser that won Seitz his success.

First evidence I have seen of knocking out high cost of living has failed. Ed Burnell has had printed two dollar orders for the coming K. of P. Thanksgiving Ball.

When this was known such a hue and cry followed as to compel a change to the usual fancy folders with silk cord and tassels costing five or six times more than the orders already printed.

There you have it! The public demand luxuries and howl over the high cost of living, attend the movies three times a week and ride in autos on Sunday!

Thin ice period is here. Who will be the victims. See announcements later.

Frank Noyes groans over the advanced costs of woven silk labels from $7.50 per thousand to $15.00 but when his daughter thousands to ride he cheerfully pays $10 for the use of an automobile for a few hours. Think of it!

A ten-cent straw hat is not popular, but I noticed many Panamas were worn last summer. Silk and satin takes the place of calico.

The net public debt of the U. S. is $1,008,120,463.32. Daniel Webster once offered to pay the National Debt out of his personal funds but didn't do it. The debt was then smaller and Daniel was generous. This was before the high cost of living got busy in the country.

ON MURDER CHARGE

George Gallant of New Brunswick was brought to Rumford Saturday and arraigned in the Municipal court on the charge of murder. It was alleged that he was responsible for the death of Joseph Leonard, who Friday morning was found dead in his bunk in the lumber camp of White and Parrelle at Ten Degree Siding above Houghton.

The case was continued for one week and in the meantime the stomach and heart will be examined at Bowdoin Medical school. The medical examiner had not determined the cause of death.

Gallant is about 30, and Leonard had an altercation while drinking Thursday night, according to those at the camp, and Leonard was put into his bunk. He was said to have been alive at that time.

And all his records, for you, he'll play. The great Harry Lauder will sing for you. While the Peerless Melba is warbling an air. Then hear Scotti sing and make your choice—If you buy their records, you'll want many more. Of singers who are famous the wide world o'er. Just a few dollars, think how cheap. And the songs you buy you can always keep. If you want to New York to hear them sing. The price you'd pay would ransom a king. A very big sum they would demand. And very likely you'd have to stand. But right here in Norway, every day, You can hear them sing and nothing to pay; For Mr. Howe with courtesy grace Invites everybody into his place.

Boating On Sea

Dear Editor:

An item in last paper of the death of Capt. James Portland at 88 years of age was the first man to go through the Cumberland, al, and the first man to across Selago Lake. He are both very inconsistent of history of the U. S. across the Selago on 1847.

A. Rice of Portland, boat to go through the "Columbus," built and nard of Great Falls. not our Capt. James in 1820 he was a year canal boat "skipper."

Boating On Sebago Lake

Dear Editor:

An item in last paper announcing the decease of Capt. James E. Kennard of Portland at 88 years of age, states "he was the first man to take a canal boat through the Cumberland and Oxford Canals, and the first man to pilot a steamer across Sebago Lake." These statements are both very inconsistent with the facts of history of the C. & O. Canal and of the piloting of the steamer "Fawn" across the Sebago on her first trip in 1847.

A leading article in the Centennial History of Harrison on Lake Transportation in Early Days, written by Alphonso Moulton, principal compiler and editor of the book, states: "The canal was opened to the public in 1829 and the first craft to pass through was a pleasure boat known as the 'George Washington' which was built and owned by Wm. A. Rice of Portland. The first freight boat to go through the canal was the 'Columbus,' built and owned by Kennard of Great Falls. This was certainly not our Capt. James Kennard, because in 1829 he was a year old baby and no canal boat 'skipper'."

When the first steamer—the "Fawn"—made her first trip across Sebago to her old landing in 1847, Capt. Kennard was but a youth of 19 years, and could not have had much experience as a lake pilot; besides, the man appointed to command the steamer was Capt. Christopher C. W. Sampson, of Harrison, an owner and manager of canal boats for many years and a pilot of much skill and experience on all the lakes in the state. But Capt. James E. Kennard, in nature but a boy, was for many years a noted canal boatman and commander, and was master of several lake steamers in the later years of steam navigation before the Goodridge ownership of the Sebago navigation business.—G. F. South Waterford.

RESCRIPT FROM LAW COURT

Thomas M. Stevens, collector vs. Dixfield and Peru Bridge Co. In an action of debt brought by the Collector of the town of Mexico against a toll bridge corporation to recover the tax upon that portion of the bridge property situated in said town and assessed as real estate, it is held:

1. That under R. S. ch. 9, sec. 14, the stock of toll bridge corporations must be taxed as personal property to the owners thereof.

2. That the enactment upon which this section is based is sec. 2 of chap. 187 of the Pub. Laws of 1846, which provided that no part of the general tax act of 1845 "shall be deemed to authorize or require the taxing of toll bridges."

3. That to tax the capital stock to the owners and the property itself to the corporation would be, in effect, double taxation which is contrary to legislative policy.

4. That the tax in question was unauthorized, and cannot be collected. Judgment for defendant.

Norway Democrats Rejoicing

Monday evening was the date assigned. The weather and streets were favorable and a large amount of red lights, kerosene oil and gun powder were used. The procession was formed in the street and consisted of Norway Cadet Band, citizens with torches, and Norway Drum Corps. The transparencies were numerous bearing legends like these: "What hit the G. O. P.?" "Blaine said you could not do it." "I am a Democrat."

D. B. Hill. "Carnegie's millions did not save them." "The Car and the Holter tax must go." "Portraits of Cleveland and Stevenson."

The procession marched up Water Street, across the bridge to Main street, then to the Falls, then back on Main to Paris street, onto Beal street, across Lynn to Main, across Danforth onto Beal, then through Cottage onto Deering and through Crescent street to Pleasant and down Main street across Bridge to the starting point.

Many residences were finely decorated and illuminated. Undoubtedly the most extensive illumination was at Hotel de Hamilton. Tar barrels were burned at convenient places. Cannon were fired and dynamite cartridges were exploded. The whistle of C. B. Cummings and Sons' factory was sounded and confusion and noise reigned triumphant for some two hours.

C. G. Mason rode in a carriage and carried the big transparency. He was decorated with a large white hat.

South Paris: Capt. F. C. Tribou, a retired sea captain, formerly of Bucksport, will occupy a rent in W. R. Howe's house until spring when he will take possession of the A. J. Howe's place, which he bought some time ago.

Abe Klaim who is making shoes in Auburn was at home with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Klaim, over Sunday. A neighbor has been told that he has forbidden sliding. It is a good safe move and might avoid serious consequences later. It has to be applied each year.

THE CELEBRATION AT NORWAY AND SOUTH PARIS

The Democratic citizens and Republicans sympathizers of Norway, Paris, Bryant's Pond, Bethel and other towns over which the Oxford Bears are supposed to roam, carried the celebration of a Wilson victory to a grand conclusion Friday evening, November 17. The booming of Ed. Rich's cannon, the tooting of horns, stirring band music, plenty of red fire and a monster parade placed the Democrats of all towns on the political map for their enthusiasm and get these With six inches of snow on the ground and more falling, put up a discouraging combination that would have knocked down anything but a political send off.

The crowds were there just the same and formed a line nearly a mile long including twelve hundred torch bearers, transparencies, floats, drum corps, automobiles and the Lewiston Brigade Band.

About seven o'clock the procession formed near the depot at South Paris with Theodore Frost, Carroll Bartlett and others mounted to lead the way, then a platoon of young men with colored fire. The Lewiston Brigade Band were next in line, with music a plenty that even falling snow could not quench, following were the enthusiastic torch bearers in squads of four, who trudged along with cheers and shouts as happy as youngsters on a picnic. The parade marched up Western Avenue, around the sled factory to High street, then into the square and onward up Pleasant toward Norway.

Many of the residences were brilliantly illuminated and flags formed a conspicuous decoration. A line of red fire was burned along the route both on the street and in the automobiles, forming the last division.

Owing to the hard walking, the Norway route was changed somewhat so the big parade entered the village via Paris street, passed down Main toward the Falls, turned onto Fair street up Winton to Beal, down Marston, then up Main to Whitman passing through Crescent to Pleasant street, thence down Main to the Beals Tavern, where music by the band and splendid speech wound up the big celebration.

A political gathering of this sort would not be complete without many heart-rending caricatures on up to date topics. Illuminated signs were conspicuous. "He's a Winner" and "G. O. P. Died, Nov. 7, 1916." "K. K. K. is a Master" and "DeCoster is still for Norway Office" were a sample. A tremendous crack was made on local office seekers with a coffin in deep mourning bearing the legend "Republican Post Office Boom." Joe King's goat led by his son Mike, carrying a sign that read "Goat" made a hit, also Fred Cummings astride a Democratic donkey in the make up of the Hon. W. J. Bryan, drew a big laugh. "Uncle Sam" as personified by Ed. Lever, rode majestically on the top of a tally-ho, where red fire was continually burning. Inside this overland coach rode Byron Tuttle of South Paris, Mr. Libby of Bryant's Pond and Fred L. Edwards, Esq., of Bethel. About fifteen autos with flags and colored illumination added much to the long procession. In these were prominent citizens, their wives, who braved the cold and storm for two hours so as to properly celebrate the victory.

The crowd that assembled before the Beals Tavern for the speech making was large and jubilant. Cheering, horns, and band music were all mingled with the smell of burning oil and powder. Everybody was happy and didn't appear to mind cold feet or other winter conditions. Lewiston Brigade band lived things up while waiting for the crowd to settle. They were praised for the faithful discharge of their duty, as they were on the job from the start to finish. By much petting, the horns were kept free from ice and the music continued during the four miles of march.

Speeches of Norway introduced the speaker, Judge Harry Webster of Auburn, who was received with an ovation. His remarks lasted about twenty minutes and were pithy but considerate, the whole theme being based on "American Citizenship." He said in part that "The celebration of President Wilson is a victory of the common people. It is not a partisan victory but a good citizen movement to advance the highest and best in our beloved country."

Continuing, Judge Webster said in substance "We tonight glorify" as a Democratic party symbol. It is not necessarily so, for the good old flag cannot be the property of any one party, sect or creed, but is owned by every man, woman and child who values true citizenship above all else."

The speaker was loudly cheered throughout his address.

The citizens of Norway responded well to the call for decorations. Many dark houses were observed but as the parade passed, a delegation saw to it that a red fire was burning near the spot.

At the Beals Tavern, F. Robert Seavey had a red, white and blue incandescent display, and the Oxford Electric Company were generous with colored lights in their office. James N. Tubbs had both his house and store well decorated, as did C. A. Richards, Flag, business and colored light effects were tastefully arranged, but no effect was made to spread out, for the sentiment of honor to the President could be expressed just as strongly in this simple manner. Among those who assisted in illuminating were: Stone's Drug Store, Alfred and Moulton, Direct Importing Co., John Sampson, "Shorty" Cook's shop, A. L. Clark Drug Co., Norway Commercial Club, Buswell's Boot Shop, Edward J. Burnell, Charles Allen, Stephen Hatch, Robert Erickson, Phil Bradley, Dr. Charles I. Fogg, A. E. Pettengill, Frank Hurd, Geo. A. Brooks, C. N. Tubbs, A. L. F. Pike, Timothy Heath, Merritt Welch, Olive Woodsum, Fred Smith, Abbie Jane Tubbs, Jack Ledger, Lieut. C. H. Pike, Clarence L. DeCoster, Fred Hosmer, Fred Allen, Loy Cushman, Lee Smith, Verne Rich, Mrs. S. T. Woodsam, W. S. Pierce, Mrs. Etta Newsworthy, Geo. Robertson, Mrs. Horace Cole and many others. The staunch Republicans added their tribute to the good cause, Dennis Pike, Wm. C. Leavitt and S. C. Foster. Sim Hartmann, payed his bet, man, fashion with a torch, and received no little amount of side line suggestion as he trudged merrily on.

The general committee, who brought this matter to a successful conclusion were: Geo. L. Sanborn, F. Robert Seavey, Frank B. DeCoster, William O. Frothingham, Herman Richardson, Giles F. Frost.

Mrs. Samira Dunham, who has been working for Frank Pike's, goes Friday to Massachusetts, where she has a position as housekeeper at Clarence Pike's. She will probably remain there during the winter.

Indian Cemetery Sand in the Norway Streets.

Many years before the first white man built his rough cabin within the present limits of Norway, the Androscoggin Indians, belonging to the great Algonquin tribe, piled their trail canoe up on streams, or skinned over the placid surface of the "big pond."

No man living to-day can boast of having seen the red skins, nor can they recite hair raising stories of personal encounters with these wild being of the wood. Tradition is helpful in drawing material for an Indian romance, but circumstantial evidence is stronger, as it introduces a collection of material objects, which appeal to the senses, and not wholly imaginative.

Several collectors have for many years accidentally stumbled across flint and Jasper implements of various sizes that bear the earmarks of Indian origin. These have been picked up along the shore of Lake Penesseewassee, at Sawyer brook, along the lowlands near the Little Androscoggin river and various localities. All spear heads and gouges are of good shape, but not well finished, which would indicate either a busy life or low artistic temperament.

Returning to the tradition side of the story, there is evidence from that source that a small tribe had a camp site on the pine clad point near the Little Androscoggin, on the Olcott Brown farm, now owned by Mrs. Horace Cole. Stories passed along over three generations quote that Indians passing up river from the ocean to the large ponds in Greenwood and Woodstock, used this neck of land for a resting place, and had a permanent wigwam settlement. This may or may not be true, as no material evidence has yet been discovered on the site to substantiate the statement. The location has been examined carefully and blackened rocks indicating a rude fireplace were found. Also a depression in the ground, with a slight twist of the imagination, could be made to serve as an abandoned storage cellar. An Indian trail winds along the brook to the railroad, then can be found again, below the iron bridge, near the highway to West Paris and Paris Hill, thus followed for several miles up stream.

There may be more or less truth in this statement from the obscure past, because of human bones and bones of several years ago in the sand pit, on the same farm, a short distance down stream from the camping place. In 1895 workmen were hauling sand, and found bones which they cast aside, believing them to be the remains of an animal. George L. Noyes, an authority in matters of this kind, happened along. Realizing the importance of the discovery, a spade was procured and with the help of Horace Cole, the searchers open more ground in the vicinity. They were rewarded after considerable labor, by bringing to light twelve skeletons, three were of skulls and the others probably children or young persons.

Evidences of Indian origin were conclusive. The bones were found about two feet under ground, covered with bark. In the proximity of the site, with remains of a fire over the graves. Several were intact, but some crumbled after being exposed to the air. The skulls, together with the so called long bones of the limbs were in a fair state of preservation and are now in Mr. Noyes' collection at Norway. No arrow or spear heads were found, only one sea shell bead presumably from the necklace of a child, came to light. This condition might indicate extreme poverty, as the early custom demanded an interment of weapons, to be used the largest of the group.

George Noyes, in relating the story of his find said, "Probably more bones are on that point for the place was probably a genuine Indian cemetery, and will be unearthed later, as the sand is removed."

When asked concerning the probable time of the burial, he admitted we had no data yet as he stated, "They might have been the victims of the fever epidemic that run riot through the several tribes two hundred or more years ago."

Thus sand from this cemetery has made our Main street and the cement sidewalks laid during the past summer, but may this fact not trouble the superstitious.

Mrs. W. Frank Cox of Crescent street fell down the stable stairs into the basement recently with serious results. Besides a thorough shaking up she sustained a fracture of several ribs and bruises, but is able to walk about the house and do a little work. The injury is painful but a speedy recovery is hoped for.

The Maine Conference have started a campaign to raise $200,000 toward a general fund of $15,000,000 for pensions to retired ministers of the Methodist denomination. The first local move was made Sunday morning when Rev. H. L. Nichols delivered a strong appeal, giving seven reasons why the fund should be raised, and the benefits derived therefrom. A sacrifice might be necessary to accomplish this purpose but it is worth while. Rev. T. C. Chapman of Bethel will exchange with the pastor and occupy the pulpit next Sunday, delivering an address upon the same theme, this will be followed in another week by a prominent Lewiston layman's appeal.

"WORKS BOTH WAYS"

The getting of two distinct values when purchasing one article applies pretty generally in the field of merchandise these times, extending even to liniments. While most articles of this nature are intended for external use only, a notable exception is the famous Johnson's Anodyne Liniment. Powerful enough for every requirement of outside application when needed for sprains, muscular rheumatism, all aches, pains and soreness, it is, in addition, a wonderfully effective preparation for internal use in the cases of colds, coughs, sore throat, cramps, chills, etc., when necessary that its remarkable soothing and healing qualities go direct to the seat of an inward trouble. Thus, in Johnson's Anodyne Liniment you get two in one—internal and external use—the double value liniment as it is known. Over 100 years of splendid service to humanity has made Dr. Abner Johnson's prescription a household word, and present day users speak of it as "an angel in disguise."—adv.

"Only 'Gets-It' for Me After This!"

It "Gets" Every Corn Every Time. Painless. Nothing More Simple. "I'll tell you what, I've quit using toe-eating salves for corns. I've quit making a package out of my toes with bandages and contraptions—quit digging with knives and scissors. Give me 'GETS-IT' every time!"

When You See These Pretty Girls in Your Druggists' Window It's a Good Time To End Your Corns.

That's what they all say the very first time they use "GETS-IT". It's because "GETS-IT" is so simple and easy to use—put it on in a few seconds—because there is no work or corn-fooling to do, no pain that shoots up to your heart. It gets your corns off your mind. All the time it's working—and then that little old corn peels right off, leaving the clean, corn-free skin underneath—and your corn is gone! No wonder millions prefer "GETS-IT". Try it tonight. "GETS-IT" is sold and recommended by druggists everywhere. 50¢ a bottle, or sent on receipt of price by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago, Ill.

Sold in Norway and recommended as the world's best corn remedy by F. P. Stone.

"PAY UP" WEEK

"Pay-up" week means that during the six working days thereof every one shall pay his debts. In order to determine the workings of the plan a merchant attached to a $5 bill paid to a creditor, a memorandum blank on which each person who used the bill in wiping out an indebtedness was asked to note the transaction.

When the week ended it was found that 53 persons had received the bill in payment of a debt. In other words, one $5 bill had extinguished $500 worth of indebtedness. In the course of its journeying the bill was twice received by the man who originally started it on its way, two different men who owed him $5 having used it to cancel their obligations and each time he sent it out again in disposing of debts that he owed. THANKSGIVING DAY IS NEAR

Thanksgiving will be here next Thursday and in many ways it is one of our most delightful events. It comes at a time when the rigors of winter are not yet at hand.

We have at our disposal all of the varied products of the soil, and the time for a season of partial rest for the farmer is at hand.

One of its most delightful features, which has become general, is the gathering together under the old roof-tree of all the scattered sons and daughters on that day.

Two, three and sometimes four generations thus meet around the festive and hospitable of the old homestead, and thus fraternal ties are strengthened and filial piety is encouraged.

It was a good custom that was handed down to us from the days of John Alden and the native Priscilla—the custom of setting apart one day in the year to give a thank feast to the glory of God's goodness.

We are much indebted to Colonial Massachusetts for a festival so distinctively American and so appropriately national in its character and observance.

And we must acknowledge further indebtedness, even if of a commercial nature, to Massachusetts for the famous Cape Cod cranberry, which seems to have been especially created to give tart and spice to the roast turkey, and dressing so indissolubly associated with the table traditions of Thanksgiving day.

In early days the good parson preached a sermon in the church with prayers, praise and singing. Of late years this has been omitted as we are surely drifting away from church control and influence. Sad to say but it is true.

How 'man Thanksgiving sermons and church gatherings will there be in Oxford County this year. Watch the news in our local columns and you will see. Should it be so?

HEBRON.

Special Prizes Offered

Hebron students are exceedingly elated over the prospect of competing for the prizes which have been offered to the academy by Mrs. Kate Tryon. There are two of these nature study prizes, the first of five dollars is to go to the boy who between now and commencement day, shall be able to point to her or Mrs. Dwyer, the largest number of specimens of the wild hawthorne shrub which the boy himself, unaided has found on solitary walks in Hebron. He must also present a written statement of the different ways in which he believes he has been benefited by undertaking the search.

Then the boy who shows the second largest number of hawthornes will receive the same prize if his statement surpasses in excellence that of the one who exceeded him.

Mrs. Tryon explained to the pupils that the hawthorne is unmistakable even in winter by its sharp thorns. Although the most characteristic shrub in England it is quite rare in New England. While in Hebron these past six weeks, Mrs. Tryon has found a few in her rambles and believes they may be more.

Prizes, also, are offered to the girls. She, who writes the best essay showing fine feeling for and appreciation of the beauties of nature and the charm of life in the open air, will win five dollars. Mrs. Tryon has pointed out that inspiration for this essay may be found in many writers, but the two authors recommended are our own Thoreau and the English Jeffries. Description of personal experience is expected and the essays are to be presented by the first of June.

An Interesting Letter From Joseph Andrews.

Dear Advertiser: I have been reviewing my scrap book No. one, and the eight letters I wrote to the Advertiser about 1909, giving sketches of the Old Families of Lovell Center and West Fryeburg, also scrap book No. 2 in which are pasted the cuttings of the 23 letters I wrote to the Advertiser telling of my house to house canvass over the same ground in 1912, and I find that I told about all that is to be told in those sketches, and all that I shall try to do now is to take note of the few changes that have taken place during the past four years and perhaps occasionally get into a reminiscent mood.

As noted in my last letter, my first stop was at West Fryeburg at Henry Andrews', and there is where I will begin my story. Mr. Andrews has one of the finest farms in Fryeburg. I found them all alone. I found him busy with his hay, and I think it was 75 big loads of hay that he cut last season besides a large second crop. His big barn was filled to the ridge-pole with the fragrant hay and he sold quite a lot in the field. He keeps no stock, not even a cow, only a span of work horses. He sells all his hay, and keeps up the fertility of his fields by buying ashes by the car lot and sewing it on the land. He has no trouble in hiring men with teams to do his haying, and thus solves the hired help problem, both on the farm and in the house.

In addition to his fine farm he owns valuable timber land and is one of the wealthy citizens of the town. Mrs. Andrews keeps a fine flock of Rhode Island Red chickens, in which she takes much pride, and who pay her for her care and feed with well filled baskets of eggs which find a ready sale at the village, at Summer border prices. They own a fine $1,600 auto, and their daughter Calista is their driver. She is the wife of Willis Farrington, a thrifty young farmer who, with his mother, owns a fine farm a mile and a half down the road. Their son, Charles Andrews, traded his fine farm home in West Fryeburg with his father for the latter's choice village residence where he and his wife and daughter Ethel live and where he is kept busy selling and repairing autos, and looking after a first class garage business. Mary, the eldest daughter, is the wife of Lou Stephens. They have one daughter, Lillian. Mr. Stephens owns and operates what used to be the Old Osborn Charles saw mill. He has greatly improved the mill by installing a steam engine and boiler, and that he can run the mill the year round regardless of high or low water. He is at work on a 2,000,000 feet contract, sawing the lumber from a lot adjoining the mill pond, while Richard Webster and Ray Ballard have been working all summer, and have a winter's job cutting and snaking the logs to the pond.

I called twice on E. W. Burbank: He is badly crippled with rheumatism and has to get around on crutches. As his wife is almost helpless from the same trouble, Mr. Burbank has to be both housekeeper and nurse, and has a pretty strenuous time of it keeping things in order. I enjoyed a pleasant call one evening at the home of Bryon Hutchins.

He had his barn chuck full of hay, and was hauling his sweet corn to the village canning factory. Mr. and Mrs. Hutchins are an old working people. They have raised up a large family of children and have led strenuous lives with plenty of hard work to do. The cozy brick house in which they live was, in my younger days, the home of my sister Hannah, wife of Edmund Shirley, and the old store building just beyond, which has been used for a dwelling for many years, was then used and occupied as a store, kept by Abraham Andrews and Edmund Shirley.

I remember that it was a great treat to me when a small boy and visit-ant from West Fryeburg, friends, to call at the store and sometimes be treated to a stick of candy, or a glass of lemonade. I regret that I did not get to call on Walker McKee. He had the night job of running the electric light plant and was away a part of the time on an agricultural lecturing tour.

Nathaniel Hardy had passed away and was laid away beside his wife in the nearby burying ground. He had recently bought a large lot in the new annex to the cemetery to which he had removed his wife's remains and had erected a valuable monument. This annex, which includes the Haley, Hutchins, Andrews and Hardy lots, is well improved and enclosed by a substantial iron fence. Mr. Hardy's neat trim stand of farm buildings are empty and unoccupied. A sad reminder of the brevity of human life.

At Dean Ballard's I visited several times. I found him very busy haying. In fact, he was haying most of the time that I was there. His big cattle barn and horse stable were both packed full of hay. The last two weeks of my stay he was busy inspecting the sweet corn fields and instructing the farmers when to begin harvesting and hauling their corn to the canning factory at the village. Ida, next to the youngest daughter, is her father's housekeeper, while Alice, the youngest, is assistant housekeeper and student. Louise, the third daughter, married Archie Weeks of Chatham, of whom I shall write later.

I came near missing Stephen Hardy. I had a pleasant chat with him a few days before I left. He has just returned from a hospital where he had been taking treatment and was very much improved in health.

I visited the old West Fryeburg Cemetery several times. Here more than 40 of my kinsmen are buried and many other old friends. At least six new mounds of old time friends have appeared since I was there four years ago. They are Pascal Hutchins, Mary Webster, Willard and Olive Charles, Dean Andrews and Nathaniel Hardy.

I called several times on that old veteran of the civil war, David Hill, and wife. He is nearing his 90th mile stone. I found he and his wife in their usual good health. I did not think to inquire about the health of Nimrod, the family horse, 26 years old, but I think he is in the job yet, as I saw it.

Hill out buggy riding several times. Farther down the road I had a little chat with James Hardy. He was working all alone and was busy storing away a load of hay. He elevated it with a horse and hay fork, then went up on a ladder and stored it away.

At the home of Willis Farrington I visited twice, and enjoyed my visit very much. He and his wife (nee Calista Andrews) and mother have a beautiful and commodious home and fine farm. At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Walker (nee Ballard) I enjoyed several fine visits, also with Mr. Walker's father, who is living with the children since the death of his wife. As usual their big barn was filled with hay, and they had a large fleet of sweet corn which they were busy harvesting.

It was here in West Fryeburg that I got my fill of blueberries. Down in David Hill's, and Dean Ballard's pasture, on the intervals there were many bushels of them. I went berrying four times and picked besides what I could eat, about 15 quarts. The Norwobs also in my wanderings did I find a single blueberry, but blackberries were plenty wherever I went.

Prof. Melvin Ballard of Washington, D. C., a brother of Dean Ballard, has for many years taken his annual summer vacation at Fryeburg, boarding with his niece, Mrs. Emma Walker, at West Fryeburg. It was there that I met him several times during my visit to Maine four years ago. He loved the home of his childhood and continued his visits just the same after the death of his mother. He will visit the old home no more in the flesh for he has crossed the still deep waters of death, to meet his loved ones in the spirit land. About two years ago while out for a walk in Washington, he had an epileptic shock and fell unconscious in the street and lived but a short time.

I will now go back to my starting point and travel the other way for a while. Word comes from Calista Andrews, sister of Henry Andrews that she is seriously ill at the home of her nephew Dr. Walter Winchester, at Plim, Mich., with leakage of the heart. Her cousin, Fannie B. Fessenden, who lives in Western Canada, has come east to help care for her. Miss Andrews has acted the good samaritan all her life and has devoted a good share of the last forty years to the care of invalid friends and relatives, and now in her hour of pain and suffering she has the sympathy of her many friends, and their fervent wish that she may soon be restored to strength and health.

Melvin Ballard, a brother of Calista and Henry Andrews, is the odd chick of the family. He has never married and lives alone, a kind of hermit's life. A year or two ago he leased an acre of wood land about one-fourth of a mile down Ballard's brook, almost down to the Saco river and here far removed from the busy world's care and strife, he has built a neat comfortable one-room house, with cement basement below, and a loft above and neat wood shed and work shop adjoining.

He has cleared up his little farm, fenced it in with a high woven fence, and expended a good deal in terracing up around the house. I called on him about the middle of September and found him busy in his garden. He had a fine display of sweet peas and other flowers. His grape vines grow up, and a fine start in small fruit, also apple and pear trees and a splendid garden. He likes solitude and to be alone, and takes great pleasure in working, and tending up his little farm. He is one of six of my school companions who attended school with me in the winter of 1867-7, and who are all still living in the West Fryeburg school district.

Yours truly,
Joseph Andrews,
Marietta, Ohio, November 12th, 1916.

WILSON'S MILLS

Mr. and Mrs. Newell Littlehale were called to Auburn early in the week, as their daughter, Mrs. E. H. Brooks, had been seriously burned by her clothing taking fire from a gas stove; they were accompanied by their daughters, Mrs. J. W. Buckman.

Elwyn Storey, with his mother, Mrs. Bertha Wilson and his sister, Mrs. Millie Linnell, were callers at E. S. Bennett's the first of the week.

The heavy snowfall beginning in the evening of Sunday of last week and lasting until Tuesday night, with the subsequent cold weather, has put the boats on the lake out of commission, on account of the ice.

Mrs. D. C. Bennett is at Lewiston with her daughter, Cecil Bennett, who has had an operation on her throat.

E. W. York is on the sick list. The man who didn't believe in "preparedness" went deer hunting recently. He shot his deer, but had neither hatchet, hunting knife, nor even a jackknife with him. The nearest to a weapon he could find was a safety pin. Whether that will convert him to the ways of "preparedness" remains to be seen.

Large Game Plentiful

Last week was notable for several deer secured in the sections nearby. On the Grover Hill street Wednesday the 15th, Lester Tyler secured a large one and the next day Ralph Hill had the good luck to shoot one while his brother Clifford shot a bear at the same time.

Saturday, Fred Hutchins brought down a deer said to weigh one hundred and seventy-five pounds. We were told that on a recent day a bear and a deer hung, one on each side of the stage on the way to the Fryeburg station.

Winter seems to have set an early this year regardless of the scarcity and high price of coal.

Pearl Boyd of Conway several of whose relatives live in Fryeburg, went to Europe several months ago and enlisted in the army in a regiment being recruited in London. A report of his death in the field being circulated, some of his relatives wrote to headquarters for information and learned that a soldier of the like name in the same regiment had been killed in battle, but not the young man known to many in this section.

Harold Andrews has been a guest at his parental home in East Conway recently, but has returned to his home in Providence, R. I., where his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Andrews, contemplate spending the approaching winter months.

John Hull has started in for the winter with the largest stock in the place. He has 40 head of cattle, four of which are oxen, a pair of horses, three colts, three sheep, 21 swine, between 70 and 80 hens, a flock of pigeons, a dog and several cats.

Alonso and Urban Hall, who are working in the woods, brought in a deer, Saturday. John Seavey also got one, Saturday.

WEST PARIS.

Piano Recital

Mrs. Stella Burnham of South Paris, who for a number of years has had piano pupils in this place, gave a recital at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chester H. Lane, Jr., last Saturday afternoon, which is the first she has ever given here, and which proved a very enjoyable and well prepared affair. She has ten pupils here. All were present except two, Lola and Annie Chandler of Sumner, who were not able to come and each demonstrated her skill in a very delightful manner. Following is the program:

Duet, Caprice. Mrs. Burnham, Edith Gardner Bush, Rose. Bertha Perry
Duet, On to Triumph. Bertha Perry

Apprentices. Dale Swift
Duet, Et Masque. Edith Gardner
Joyous Peasant. Helen Emery
Nightingale's Trill. Bertha Perry
Mountain Stream. Hester Ordway
Duet March. Edith Gardner, Mrs. Burnham

A number of friends and relatives were invited, fifteen or more were present. Dale Swift was the only boy pupil, who was present. Edward Penley is another who has only recently commenced taking lessons.

Mrs. Burnham has been a music teacher for a number of years, in fact has been full of music since early childhood as her father, the late John Willis of this place, once told your correspondent, that "she would play the piano when she had to stand on her tip toes to reach the key board."

Therefore being a resident of South Paris, a former resident here and a teacher all along the Grand Trunk, she needs no further recommendation. Her work speaks for herself and her willingness to help out in public entertainments whenever called upon can always be relied upon so far as she is able.

We mentioned the surprise birthday party at John E. Brock's last week, Monday evening. It was a jolly party that invaded his house and a delightful surprise in his house. Those who were present were Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Stilwell and son Edward, Mr. and Mrs. Chester H. Lane and daughter Margaret, Mr. and Mrs. S. K. Estes, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Patch and daughter Mary and Rev. and Mrs. L. W. Grundy. They presented Mr. Brock with a fountain pen, lively games were played and delicious refreshments were served by Mr. Brock.

An all day grange meeting Saturday, Nov. 25, Dr. Ness of Auburn will speak on dairying and the prevention of disease in animals in the afternoon. Music and other interesting things will also be on the program. It will be an open meeting in the afternoon and a cordial invitation is extended.
